C. OF C. ADOPTS R. R. RESOLUTION

FAVORS CONTINUED AND UNINTERRUPTED TRANSPORTATION

WANT MEN PROTECTED

To Such Men as Are Willing to Work Against Violence in Accordance With President's Principles.

The board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce went on record at the meeting last night for a continued and uninterrupted transportation and urges upon authorities the importance of providing proper protection to such men as are willing to work against violence or intimidation.

The resolutions adopted follows:

"Whereas, free and uninterrupted movement of traffic is essential to the safety and prosperity of this community, and,

"Whereas, the transportation Act is provided the method for settling disputes between the railroads and the employes, and the public has the right to expect they will not be made to suffer by either the railroad company or the employes arbitrarily disregarding decisions of the Labor Board, and

"Whereas, the Labor Board has made it plain by official order that the strike now prevailing is unwarranted, in the following language:

"If it be assumed that the employees who leave the service of the carrier because of their dissatisfaction with any decision of the Labor Board are within their rights in so doing, it must likewise be conceded that the men who remain in the service and those who enter it anew are within their rights in accepting such employment; that they are not strikebreakers seeking to impose the arbitrary will of an employer on employees; that they have the moral as well as the legal right to engage in such service of the American public to avoid interruption of indispensable railway transportation, and that they are entitled to the protection of every department and branch of the Government, State and National."

Therefore, this Maryville Chamber of Commerce places itself on record, supporting these principles and calls upon its members and the community generally to render their assistance to insure a continued and uninterrupted transportation, and urges upon the governmental authorities, national, state and local, the importance of providing proper protection to such men as are willing to work against violence or intimidation, in accordance with the principles expressed by President Harding in his Marion Fourth of July speech,

"A free American has the right to labor without any other's leave" and "Liberty is gone in America when any man is denied by anybody the right to work and live by that work;"

"And directs that copy of these resolutions be sent to the Governor of the State, Mayor, County and City Attorney, Sheriff and other local authorities, and also furnished to the newspapers.

Maryville Chamber of Commerce."

DR. E. A. WINSHIP TO BE HERE FRIDAY

WILL SPEAK AT COLLEGE AND GARRETT SCHOOL

RURAL CLUB TO ATTEND

Chamber of Commerce to Furnish Transportation for Organization —Public Invited

Dr. E. A. Winship of Boston, one of the prominent educators of the country, will be in Maryville Friday. He will speak in the morning at the College and in the afternoon at the Garrett School, three miles southwest of Maryville.

Friday afternoon the people of the community about Garrett School and the people of Maryville are invited in to see a demonstration of what is being done in the school, which is used as a place of demonstration for the students of the State Teachers College.

It is held by educators that it is not possible for a teacher to go out of a school and meet properly the situations that arise there unless she has had a chance to observe. At the beginning of the summer term this year the Garrett School was secured by the College as a place of demonstration. Thirteen children are taken there each day from Maryville by the College bus and the pupils of the district attend also. The school is in charge of Miss Margaret Franken. Students from the classes at the College visit the school and observe the work that is being done there under actual conditions in a rural school house and in a rural community.

Merle Selecman was called on at the Chamber of Commerce dinner last night to give an explanation of the school and to announce the demonstration that is to be put on there Friday afternoon. Mr. Selecman said that the co-operation on the part of the directors of the district is making possible some good work at the school. He said that the members of the Rural Club, the largest student organization at the College, desire to attend the demonstration at the Garrett School Friday afternoon. He asked that the Chamber of Commerce cooperate in furnishing transportation for the club members in order that they may all get there. Refreshments will be served at the school.

The Chamber of Commerce will take care of the transportation situation.

TRAIN SERVICE IS STILL TIED UP

WABASH CAN RUN TO STANBERRY —NO ST. JOSEPH TRAINS.

102 RIVER BANK FULL

Will Be the Last of the Week Before Normal Train Service Will Be Resumed.

Maryville is still without through train service and it may be the rest of the week before full service is resumed. The Burlington has their line to Arkoe now open and trains will be run down there probably today. The morning Burlington passenger train came from Creston this morning as far as Maryville and went back at noon as train No. 4. The Burlington train from St. Louis can come as far as Rosendale today. The high waters at Rosendale are from two to four feet over the track north of Rosendale.

Agent W. E. Goforth of the Burlington thought it would be Wednesday evening or Thursday before normal service is resumed. There was still high water on the track between Arkoe and Barnard but it was reported it was rapidly receding this afternoon.

The freight train on the Burlington from Creston is running as far as Hopkins and will probably run to Maryville tomorrow. There was a weak bridge on the line between here and Hopkins which the heavy freight engine would endanger if permitted to run over it at present.

Mr. Goforth said the railroad bridge at Bridgewater was said to be out of line. It would take some little time to get the bridge back into line again, Mr. Goforth thought. No report has been made on the damage done between Arkoe and Barnard as there was water still over the track at a number of places.

The Wabash has their line to Stanberry in condition so as passenger No. 12 today was able to go to that place. It will return this evening as train No. 3.

Owing to wires being down, east of here, no definite word has been received about the track condition east of Stanberry. It was said the track was washed out near Darlington, Evona, Pattonsburg and Chillicothe.

The Wabash announces this afternoon the night train, No. 14, was annulled for tonight. This train as well as No. 11 were annulled last night and this morning.

The local freight from Stanberry was expected to arrive during the afternoon on its way to Council Bluffs. The west bound freight from Council Bluffs was scheduled to arrive in Maryville at 4 o'clock on its way to Stanberry.

It is not definitely known when through service can be resumed on the Wabash but it was thought it would not be before Friday or Saturday. The stub trains No. 50 and 51 on the Wabash have been annulled for the time being.

Trains were running on the Great Western today.

102 Back In Banks

The One Hundred and Two River is back in its banks this afternoon and has fallen about five or six feet since yesterday morning. It is still very high and swift. There is a whirlpool on the east side of the new dam which is cutting that side pretty badly. The bank on the west side of the dam is being cut too. The water is not low enough now to estimate how much damage will be done to the new dam.

Workmen were busy this morning moving part of the rock which had been taken to the river to make fills. Part of the rock were washed away but most was moved and saved from being lost when the river cut into the bank.

CAPITAL STOCK TAX RETURN THIS MONTH

Several Miscellaneous Occupational Taxes Are Due in July

The following statement is issued by Collector of Internal Revenue Noah Crooks of the 6th District of Missouri.

Forms for making returns of special taxes, due under the Revenue Act of 1921 during the month of July, now are available at the Office of Collector of Internal Revenue, Kansas City, Mo., and the following branch offices: St. Joseph, Springfield and Joplin.

To avoid penalty return and payment of the tax must be made on or before July 31, 1922.

Return of the Capital Stock tax of domestic corporations must be made on Form 707 and foreign corporations on Form 708. Form 11 is used for making return of the miscellaneous occupational and the tobacco manufacturer's special tax. Regulations 64, governing the collection of the capital stock tax, Regulations 59 governing the collection of the miscellaneous occupational taxes and Regulations 8 governing the collection of the tobacco manufacturer's special tax also may be obtained upon request of the office of the Collector of Internal Revenue and branch offices.

The revenue act provides "that every domestic corporation shall pay annually a special excise tax with respect to carrying on or doing business equivalent to $1 for each $1,000 of so much of the fair average value of its capital stock for the preceding year ending June 30, as in excess of $5,000. In estimating the value of the capital stock, the surplus and undivided profits shall be included.

"Every foreign corporation shall pay annually a special excise tax with respect to carrying on or doing business in the United States, equivalent to $1 for each $1,000 of the average amount of capital employed in transaction of its business in the United States, during the preceding year ending June 30."

The basis of the tax in the case of a domestic corporation is "carrying on or doing business" in the capacity of a corporation or association. Quoting from the Capital Stock Tax Regulations No. 64, "The words 'carrying on or doing business' must be given every ordinary and natural signification. 'Business' is a very comprehensive term and embraces whatever occupies the time, attention or labor of men for the purpose of livelihood or profit. In other words business necessarily involves the idea of gain." Every domestic corporation must make a return on Form 707, even though the law may indicate that it is exempt from the tax.

The question of exemption is one for determination by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

Following are the miscellaneous occupational taxes: brokers, $50; pawnbrokers, $100; ship brokers, $50; customhouse brokers, $50; Proprietors of theaters, museums and concert halls where a charge or admission is made, having a seating capacity of not more than 350, shall pay a tax of $50; having a seating capacity of more than 250 and not exceeding 500, $100; having a seating capacity exceeding 500 and not exceeding 800, $150; having a seating capacity of more than 800, $200.

Circus proprietors are required to pay a tax of $100; proprietors of bowling alleys and billiard rooms are required to pay $10 for each alley or table; proprietors of shooting galleries, $20; proprietors of riding academies, $100.

Persons carrying on the business of operating or renting passenger automobiles for hire are required to pay $10 for each such automobile having a seating capacity of more than two and not more than seven, and $20 for each such automobile having a seating capacity of more than seven.

Would Be World's Champion Woman Prize Fighter

Boston, Mass., July 11.—When her husband fell ill, and the responsibility of caring for him and their three children fell upon her shoulders, 23 years old Mrs. Ellie Graves had a fight on her hands. And, getting a pair of boxing gloves, she literally began to fight for a living.

Since then she has become so capable with her mitts that she is quite a card at boxing events, and has issued a challange to any woman in the world of her weight. The young mother looks less like a female prize fighter than a demure schoolgirl. But how she can battle. Men who have faced her declare she has dynamite in her left hook.

"I want to be the woman champion prize fighter of the world," she told the reporter. The evening before, she had boxed an exhibition battle with Al Delmont, former New England lightweight champion at the army and navy Y. M. C. A. in Charlestown.

"My other favorite pastime," she confessed, "is drawing and painting. I do not care for the movies."

TRAIN SERVICE IS STILL TIED UP

Lafe Stamper on Route No. 6 was able to go twelve and a half miles. He reported bridges washed out on the Big Slew.

Herman Barton on Route No. 7 went twenty-four miles. He reported bridges out at Eugene Lyle's place and as well as three county bridges on the White Cloud.

Wheat Lodged Along Fences

A considerable portion of the wheat that was washed out of the shocks by the high water lodged along the fence rows. Farmers are doubtful as to whether they will be able to save and thresh any of this or not. If it continues wet it will stay so muddy that it will be a difficult matter to move the bundles and if they are moved they will not dry dry out and the grain will probably sprout. Some of the men think that they may be able to move the bundles and get some benefit from them by throwing them to the hogs.

Damage Done In Town

Considerable damage was done in Maryville to the streets. Dirt was washed from them and in some places gullies were washed out along the middle of the streets.

A portion of the terrace at the home of Mrs. E. J. Williams on East Third street slid off onto the sidewalk during the rain Sunday night.

Fences Down

A man who came in this morning from the Roy Schulte farm, eight and a half miles southeast of Maryville, said that he saw many places where the fences had been broken down by the high water. He said that he did not see what the farmers in some cases would do with their stock until the fences are fixed, unless they herd them. He said that a bunch of hogs were in the road in the One Hundred and Two River bottoms east of the State road bridge. He saw a great deal of wheat lodged along the fence rows.

Roy Schulte had ten loads of wood all cut in stove lengths. It was in the bottoms of the Long Branch Creek and was all washed away. He did not know early this morning whether he would be able to find and save any of it or not. Mr. Schulte also lost some wheat.

Horse Crowded into Washout

One of the horses of Earl Robinson was crowded from a bridge approach just north of the Douglas school house yesterday. The approach was partly washed out. Mrs. Robinson and the children got out of the buggy before Mr. Robinson started to drive over the bridge. One of the horses became frightened and crowded the other into the washed out place. The horse was not hurt and the only damage was that done the harness.

Barn Destroyed by Fire.

The barn on the place of Grover Moore, eight miles east and one-half mile north, was destroyed by fire Sunday evening about 7 o'clock, after being struck by lightning. The barn was totally destroyed. A little feed in the barn was lost. No stock was burned. Mr. Moore and several neighbors fought the fire for quite a while but they were unable to put it out.

Horse Killed at Pickering

It was reported yesterday that a carload of hogs ready for shipment from Pickering were drowned in the stockyards. This report is said today to be false. Considerable damage was done to the crops in the bottoms near Pickering.

C. R. Moore, who lives near Pickering, lost a horse from lightning Sunday night.

Says Neighbors Feed His Hogs

One man remarked on the streets today that his neighbors were furnishing his hog feed. A lot of wheat further up the creek had washed into his hog lot and the animals were helping themselves to it. He said that it would be unnecessary to feed them for a day or two.

Mozingo Creek Bridges Out

The bridges on the Mozingo Creek, about four miles east of Maryville are all washed out. The bridge over this creek on the State road was carred by the high waters to a pasture. The bridge over the creek a mile and a half north of the state road was washed out some but a number of the men in that neighborhood put the bridge back in its place this morning.

Charles Cox on the Mozingo Creek lost between eight and ten cords of wood by the high waters. Not a piece of the wood was saved.

The rain Sunday night washed out the potatoes on Bennett French's place in the Casteel district. Mr. French was out in his potato patch this morning picking up these potatoes.

Track Near Skidmore Damaged

Considerable damage was done to the Burlington tracks near Skidmore along the Florida Creek. It was damaged for a mile and a half and a force of from fifty to seventy-five men were at work yesterday and today getting it in shape again so that the trains could travel. The first train to come along since Sunday was the south bound train to St. Joseph. It arrived at Skidmore about 1:15 o'clock this afternoon.

The rainfall at Skidmore was reported as 7 inches. It is said that considerable damage was done to the corn along the Nodaway River bottoms and that some wheat was lost.

A Business Motive Power

The time must come when all business will consider the advisability of advertising in the same spirit that a manufacturer ponders over the advisability of adopting a new machine. One does not install a piece of labor-saving mechanism because it suits his fancy; but because the efficiency of the business requires it.

He expects the new machine to reduce his cost to operate—perhaps to make a better product—and thus aid him in meeting competition and making larger profits.

Advertising is exactly similar. The man who refuses to consider it as a possible expedient simply shuts his eyes on one of the problems of his business. He might as well ignore the banks as sources of credit when he has need to borrow capital.

On the other hand, the man who looks to advertising to checkmate all weaknesses and shortcomings of his business and to carry it along to victory despite these, has a child-like faith in the meraculous.

Advertising will not make his product or his service any better than they are; but it will bring him the full benefits of their merits. It will not eliminate wastefulness in his factory or his store; but it will reduce his cost to operate. It will not make illogical selling methods successful; but it will assist good selling methods, and often point the way for improving them.

Advertising is the most inexpensive motive power that the manufacturer or merchant can buy today. It is a form of stimulus that brings excellent returns on the investment.

"GYPSIES" ON THE INCREASE

Nomadic Life Seems to Be Becoming More and More Attractive Here in America.

One need not think that the gypsy is disappearing in America. On the contrary, if the nomadic life is the essential of the gypsy, the number of people living such a life is increasing daily. One meets on the high roads from New York to the Pacific coast freshly formed caravans of recently arrived immigrants of all nationalities taking to the road.

I have met whole families of Jewish peddlers living the gypsy life as they traveled and sold their wares, writes Konrad Bernovici in the Century. I have met several ambulant Italian barbers and their families traveling from village to village, plying their trade as they went along, a number of tinkers, welders, coppersmiths and a good many for whom the eighteenth amendment has opened the purses of villagers and farmers.

While in Ohio recently I found one morning a camp of negroes who traveled in a big motor lorry. The men were dancing cakewalks on the street corners for the amusement of villagers and for pay, and the women were attempting to tell fortunes and sell baskets and amulets. When I questioned Sambo, telling him that I had never before seen negroes camp outdoors in that fashion, he answered with pride: "We isn't colored people any more—we is gypsies."

It has been made plain, I think, that the term "gypsy" as now applied should be understood not wholly as a racial name but as a term meaning a people living a nomadic life in caravans. In whatever land the gypsy has appeared he has proved a magnet, drawing out the latent nomadic instinct of certain native folk, who have either followed after him or aped his wandering habits.

This nongypsy element justifies "gypsy" as a covering term for all who turn nomads to satisfy the eternal wanderlust. It is contrary to fact to believe that we are less nomadic than our prehistoric ancestors. As a matter of fact, most of human ingenuity and invention was and is applied to make travel easier, more comfortable and more rapid.

Whether we use caravan wagons, motors cars, trains or flying machines and whether we give different excuses for these travels, at bottom the real reason is the same nomadic instinct that drives the gypsy from place to place.

Finally Got Their Man.

The old adage that the royal Canadian mounted police always get their man is true in the case of Sergt. M. M. Stevens, who arrived recently at San Francisco with Chow Shimookski, taken into custody at Mexico City, after a chase lasting five and one-half months and covering 100,000 miles. Shimookski, charged with a double murder at Prince Rupert, British Columbia, was taken north by another Canadian officer. The chase for the fugitive led across Canada, then through the Atlantic coast states from Maine to Florida, and thence to New Orleans and into Mexico, according to Sergeant Stevens.

Small Gardens.

Eight hundred gardeners, members of one garden club in Washington, D. C., made an average of nearly $75 each from vegetables grown on one-tenth of an acre during the season of 1921. Some of these gardeners supplied all the vegetables for families of 10 and 12 people from their small gardens. Many of them canned and stored quantities of vegetables for winter use. These gardeners not only produced food, but secured valuable exercise. These clubs followed methods recommended by the United States Department of Agriculture.

Qualified Committee.

At the Legion post meeting in New Jersey, one comrade was reported to be sick and a motion was carried that a committee of three "be appointed to visit Comrade Jones, sympathize with him and try to cheer him up."

Then it was reported that another comrade had been married since the last meeting, and the commander suggested that the post take suitable action.

"Send the same committee to see him," suggested a voice.

Mixed Drinks.

He had made several vain attempts to swallow the mixture; but, somehow or other, he could not get it down. When at last he did manage to catch the waitress' eye he called to her and said:

"There's something funny about this coffee. It tastes like cocoa.

The waitress sipped it, made a wry face, and sipped it again, to make sure.

"I'm sorry," she said. "I've given you tea."—Tit-Bits.

Hospitable Soul.

"That's the third time this week the kitchen roof of this boarding house has caught fire," grumbled the chief.

"What are you going to do about it?" asked a bystander.

"What can we do about it? The landlady had coffee and sandwiches ready when we arrived."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

The Literary Bug.

"Now, girlie, I'll put you among the books, department of classics."

"But I been selling lipsticks and rouge. I don't know nothing about classics."

"You don't need to know nothing. Just see that absent-minded gents don't walk off without their change."—Judge.

MUST NEVER BE OFF GUARD

Men Who Train or Care for Wild Animals in Circuses Cannot Afford to Relax Vigilance.

There's a saying in the circus zoo when a new attendant, disregarding the warnings of old-timers, becomes careless while working about the cages, "Here's a new animal trainer," the veterans will remark, as they watch the fresh helper petting a tiger or a leopard. They know that it is only a matter of a few days until the "cat" will lash out with his claws unsheathed and rip the arm of the newcomer. They also know that nothing will teach this type of attendant the alert carefulness necessary in handling wild beasts but an ugly scratching. They can only hope that the man's hurts will be slight. He must have a lesson. He must realize that all animals are dangerous at all times, even if some are more so than others.

One often hears it contemptuously remarked, writes Frank Braden in Popular Mechanics Magazine, that such and such a beast in an act is "just a mangy, toothless old lion," but often that mangy, toothless old lion, because of its rage, is more dangerous than its mates in their prime. The old lion is testy, and no matter what its years, it carries a wallop backed by ripping claws. Some of the world's foremost trainers, working with the same beasts in acts year after year, have paid for the slight carelessness that familiarity with and affection for their jungle pets have insidiously brought about. At an unexpected diversion—the overturning of a pedestal, for instance—the animals have leaped upon their mentor, but with the element of complete surprise absent, no real wild-animal expert is caught completely unaware by a beast's leap.

KNEW ALL ABOUT "LA GRIPPE"

People of the Eighteenth Century Suffered From Its Attacks as Do Those of Today.

Amid all our sufferings from the "grip," "Russian influenza," "blitz katarrh," "Spanish influenza," "flu," et id omne genus, the name and writings of Sebastian Mercier are too much forgotten. In his picturesque "Tableau de Paris" is to be found the following passage on the "grippe," written in 1787, which might have been written today:

"Almost every year toward the middle of November occur catarrhal indispositions caused by the presence of a humid and cold atmosphere and fogs which suppress transpiration. Many die of it, but the Parisians, who laugh at everything, call these colds 'the 'grippe,' the 'flirt,' but the laugher three days later is himself 'gripped' by it and goes down to the grave.

"Passing from old rooms and theater halls to the open air makes this suppression of the transpiration almost unavoidable. The new fashion of wearing long cloaks is excellent. It gives protection against the cold. Taking good exercise is even a surer remedy. The women who are compelled to wait some time for their carriages—those charming, delicate women I see shivering along the staircases and porticoes—should consider that their pelisses are not sufficient to protect them against mishaps."

What would he have said to the abbreviated skirts of today?

Radio in Yosemite.

Yosemite's granite cliffs rise straight into the air for 3,400, 4,000 and occasionally 5,000 feet. Yosemite valley is literally a "hole in the ground," and some wireless experts declared local conditions were entirely against successful operation of a wireless station there. Nevertheless, valley folk recently have been getting news reports, weather predictions, market quotations and lots of good music right out of the air, with no other aerial than wires strung between two of the giant trees with which the valley floor is forested.

Edwin J. Symmes, of Alameda, put in the first wireless set for his own amusement and has received messages from several score damped and undamped wave stations, including Honolulu and Catalina island. Government authorities also have put in a station, which will be used to keep in touch with the outside world.

Changes in the Pleiades.

The question presents itself whether three stars of the constellation of the Pleiades have less brilliancy than formerly, or whether prehistoric man had a better sight than ours, or if he was wont to climb up the mountains to examine the nearest stars, or if the atmosphere of past ages was purer than ours? This problem arises from the fact that we see from below only seven of the stars of the Pleiades and that the last three stars can only be seen by ascending to the highest summits, while there have just been discovered stones dating from prehistoric times upon which the ten stars are engraved. This interesting question in astronomy and archeology has been broached to the French Academy of Sciences by M. Bigourdan.

Telephone Improvement.

Considerable progress has been made in the development of telephonic hearing aids for the partly deaf, but the limit had apparently been reached along this line until the new vacuum tube amplifier described in the Popular Mechanics Magazine was produced. This tube, the result of the efforts of many inventors, consists primarily of a small electric bulb having within it a filament, a spiral wire called a grid, and a metallic plate, all in the order named.

Scene in Ruanda, Whose King Is Wailing

Musinga, the native king of Ruanda, in what was formerly German East Africa, has violently protested against the division of his kingdom, one sixth of which has been lopped off and given to Great Britain in view of the construction of a link in the Cape to Cairo line. The photograph shows the king of Ruanda giving a gala performance in honor of a visitor.

BRITISH AND AMERICAN BOATS CLEAR FOR ACTION

Shanghai, July 11—British and American gunboats on the Pearl River stripped for action when three Chinese cruisers began bombarding the Macao Portuguise dependency at the mouth of the Canton River, off the city of Canton.

REPUBLICAN IRREGULARS MAKE SERVANTS OF GIRLS

London, July 11—The Republican irregulars in the County Donegal kidnapped twelve girls and are using them as servants, according to Central News dispatch. Many girls are fleeing from the County, fearing seizure.

Dublin, July 11—Desultory fighting broke out in Dublin but the Free State Troops were successful in restoring order. The regulars were twice attacked from ambush.

Bethany in Harrison County reported a six-inch rain Sunday night and had a flood which almost equalled that of 1909. The Big Creek through Bethany overflowed and was about a half mile wide. The rainfall lasted eleven hours. Several families had to move from their homes in West Bethany.

The Chariton branch of the Burlington is maintaining service as far south as Albany. According to reports, two miles of track are washed out below Albany.

President Lamkin Back.

President Uel W. Lamkin returned Sunday from attending the National Educational Association at Boston.

Business Brothers.

President Neilson of Smith college was making a rather tedious journey and was glad when the man who had the seat in front of his turned around and began a conversation. The man proved to be a traveling salesman and took it for granted that Doctor Neilson was another. "What's your line?" he asked. "Mine's skirts." "Well, so is mine," said the president of Smith.—New York Evening Post.

Puzzling.

A gentleman of foreign birth, recently in Indianapolis, was telling a party of friends some of the difficulties encountered in mastering our language.

"Now, for instance," said he, "you say b-o-u-g-h spells bough. Then c-o-u-g-h spells cough. According to the pronunciation given bough, if I should have a severe cold, would I say I had a cough in my chest?"

The Privileged Ones.

"The middle class of citizenship usually has the hardest time," said the economic investigator.

"Yes," replied Mr. Chuggins. "The man whose status in the scale of wealth is midway between the private car and the flivver is the only one who can't keep touring so as to spend every summer in Florida and every winter in Maine."

A Scratched Record.

One day recently Mary Birdella, age ten, and her sister, Harriet Jane, age five, were visiting their grandmother, whom they call mamma. Mary Birdella was singing to one of her dolls when mamma joined in on the refrain. Harriet Jane looked up and said, very soberly, "Aw, mamma, your record's scratched."

New Places for the Flag.

Over what is believed to be the oldest monastery in the world now flies the American flag, the ancient refuge being reopened by the Near East relief administration as a station. It is one of the most important sites in Armenia, cradle of the Christian faith in that country, having been founded by St. Gregory, who introduced Christianity into Armenia in the Third century. It covers several acres and is surrounded by a great wall which has sustained many sieges since its oldest building was erected in 350 A. D.

See Wealth in Vanilla.

According to government authority, the production of vanilla beans in Mexico may become a source of enormous revenue. It is asserted that no other country affords the opportunities for successful vanilla growing as Mexico. It already ranks ahead of all other countries in annual output of the beans, it is declared, although as yet very little attention has been paid to the industry. In the region around Tuxpam on the gulf coast the vanilla plant is found all through the tropical forests. It is a climbing orchid and does not require any attention beyond the gathering of the fragrant and valuable beans.

Why Complain!

Those impatient people who complain about late trains on American railroads will probably settle into an amazed silence and speak no more about such paltry matters when it is stated that, according to dispatches, the Tashkent express to Moscow gayly puffed into its home station 21 days late recently. Russia has overturned many illusions, but this beats them all. One hesitates to ask for statistics on messenger boys.—Christian Science Monitor.

J. B. RUH HAS HARD TIME GETTING TO MARYVILLE

Tracks Washed Out and Crops Damaged by Floods and Hail Is His Report

J. B. Ruh and Joseph Warren who went to their homes in Sheridan to spend the week end had a hard time getting back to their work here. After a round about way from Sheridan they finally walked in from Conception this morning.

Mr. Ruh left Sheridan Sunday afternoon to drive to Bedford to catch a Burlington train. He said that practically all of the small culverts were washed out between those two towns but he drove his car through the water and made all of the washouts until he came to Honey Creek, where he had to turn back. He went from Sheridan then over the Great Western railroad to Conception and walked from there this morning.

At a point about two miles on this side of Bedison Mr. Ruh said that there was about a quarte rof a mile of railroad track which was washed out. About a half mile west of that point there is about 100 yards of track out. About an eighth of a mile of track is washed out at a point two miles east of Maryville.

Wheat and oats which were planted in the bottom fields were washed out and the corn was flattened to the ground. Mr. Bogue who lives on a farm between Ravenwood and Conception on the Great Western railroad had a 125 acre field of wheat which he had just finished cutting and shocking Saturday. The entire crop was washed out by the high water.

There is a strip of land four miles south of Bedford over which it is reported was a heavy hail Sunday evening. The strip is a half a mile wide, north and south and about four miles long east and west. In this strip of land Mr. Ruh said that the crops were badly riddled.

HEAVY RAIN AT OTHER PLACES ADJOINING NODAWAY

At Rosendale, the 102 River lacks about five and a half feet of being as high as it was in 1915. The river was out all over the bottom lands and at places it was from one to two miles wide. There was one family at Rosendale that had to move to higher ground. The railroad track was covered with water for a quarter of a mile and the water was up on the railroad bridge. The river has risen some there since yesterday.

Tarkio reported a rain of two and three-fourths inches. There was a great deal of damage done to the wheat and corn. A bridge, one mile east of Tarkio, was washed out.

The water is all over the bottom west of Burlington Junction, according to information from Tarkio. At places, the river is about one mile wide near Burlington Junction, it was reported.

At Rock Port, there was three and a half inches of rain Sunday night. At Nishnabotna a little town of about fifty people, the water flooded the two stores there.

Calnesville in Harrison County reported six inches of rain Sunday night and a one inch rain last night. All of the creeks are overflowing and much of the wheat in the bottom has been washed out. Grand River was reported to be out of its banks only at places.

Hole in Cable Put Phones Out Of Commission

Twenty-three telephones were out of commission in Maryville yesterday morning by a hole, no larger than a lead pencil, in a cable. The hole made it possible for the water to enter and soak up the insulation. Harry Todd, manager for the Hanamo Company in Maryville, said that the hole had been burned in the cable by its being struck with a live wire at some time. The hole was on the underside of the cable and allowed more water to soak in than if it had been on the upper side.

MUCH GOOD IN HEARTY LAUGH

Beneficial Effect of Merriment May Be Said to Be Both Physiological and Psychological.

We find the key to the true theory, if we ask—What does laughter do for us? What are its effects or consequences? Well, obviously we enjoy laughter; it does us good to have a good laugh. The fact is notorious, writes William McDougall, in Scribner's. And when we feel depressed and moody, we welcome and seek the situations, objects or persons that will make us laugh. Laughter prevents (for the moment at least) gloomy thinking and melancholy brooding, no matter how induced. How does it achieve this beneficial effect? In two ways—one purely physiological, the other more psychological. Physiologically its immediate effect is to stimulate the respiration and the circulation, to raise the blood pressure and to send a fuller stream of blood to the head and brain; as we see in the ruddy face of the hearty laugher. Psychologically it works by breaking up every train of thinking and every sustained activity, bodily or mental. Here presumably Spencer's theory finds a partial and inverted application. The nervous channels of laughter drain off energy from all others; but they do not serve merely as channels through which surplus energy may be got rid of as a waste product; rather, they were created or evolved in order that by draining off energy, they might prevent its application in other directions. Laughter is essentially relaxation from all effort, a relaxation whose mechanical effects bring speedy recuperation of energy, and which enables us to start afresh on life's tasks briskly and undismayed, unharassed by the past. This being so, it is obvious why we seek the objects and situations that make us laugh; we seek the ludicrous, the grotesque, the absurd, the ridiculous not because they are in themselves pleasing, but because they make us laugh; and laughter does us good, makes us feel better and brighter, frees us from depression, prevents our thinking of depressing things.

A Bride of June in July

W. C. T. U.

After an organization has battled for 50 years against a foe, legalized, entrenched behind the bars of custom, appetite and greed, and armed with the ballot to keep themselves in power, they come to a realization of the importance and power of suffrage.

Such has been the history of the W. C. T. U. In the beginning, there was a small numerity that wanted suffrage, or realized what a weapon against the foe it would be. But as the years passed and petitions were slighted in every way we found the ballotless woman was handicapped. We unanimously agreed that this was a weapon that would do more execution than all our other work. We are glad our men gave us prohibition and suffrage, but we feel a solemn obligation comes with this privilege that should cause us to study to be prepared to make the best use of it. Not to do so will only duplicate votes to no advantage.

In June Good Housekeeping is an example of what a conscientious enlightened vote can do.

An old machine politician was instructing an inteligent woman on the line up of party politics.

"Why on earth should i vote for Mr. X," said the lady in reply to his advice to vote for Mr. X. "Because he is a 100 per cent dependable party man, that why." The lady knitted her brow. Dependable sounded good, but how dependable, to what, faithful. It didn't apply to Mr. X. "Mr. X fought and voted consistently against every thing I believed in," she protested. "He fought suffrage and he fought prohibition."

"Well these things are in the discard now," said her mentor hastily, "He voted according to his conscience, you can't blame him for that." "But he voted against my conscience," she answered, "He voted against the Shepard Tower bill which surely is an up to date question, and in the big modern post war problems he voted solidly with the obstructionists. No I can't vote for a man who conscientiously votes against every thing I believe in."

They agreed to leave it to her husband who endorsed every thing she said about X but said "we must have a majority in congress."

The lady said no more aloud but thought a great deal. The idea of voting against her conscience and for this obstructionist became more odious and on election day she scratched him off her ticket.

As she came from the booth she met her husband who said gaily "Did you vote for X?" "I did not," she answered "Neither did I" confessed her husband, "As I thought it over I came to the conclusion that an enlightened conscience and strong personal connections were better guides than political expediency, so I turned X down."

This is the ballot that will purify our politics and give legislation the moral quality it has so long needed. When any party learns that men and women will not support unworthy nominees, it will be forced to get men of sterling dependable qualities, not 100 per cent politicians.

TREMENDOUS TASK TO PUT ON JOHN ROBINSON CIRCUS

A Town is Under Constant Fire for Five Weeks Before the Performance Comes Off.

Few people realize the work that must be done before the twelve acres of canvass that houses the John Robinson circus each day is hoisted into the air. For five weeks before the day of exhibition men are constantly passing through the city—general agents, railroad contractors, local contracting agents, special agents, advertising car agents, brigade agents, billers, lithographers, banner men, press agents and twenty-four hour men. Each has a certain task to do, and the result of their labors that the show moves into the town and onto the circus lot without a hitch.

John Robinson's circus, now on its ninety-ninth annual tour of the North American continent will pay a visit to this territory, being scheduled to appear in Maryville on Wednesday, July 19.

The mention of the John Robinson's circus arouses the light of found memories in the eyes somewhat dimmed by advancing years, as it is the show of our grandfathers, and fathers.

With more elephants, more jungle beasts, more clowns, more spangled folk, a three-ring two-stage performance and a longer parade—so read the posters—the old favorite, in new garb and with an entirely new offering of arenic and arial displays, will be with us soon.

Throughout the city and the adjacent towns and countryside, gay posters meet the eye for the one hundred agents and billers have done their work well. All is arranged for the gala day's activities under the big top—railroad accommodations for the long trains, supplies for over one thousand people, five hundred horses and the big menagerie and the thousand and one details that go into trail blazing for arrival, parade and performances.

TWO BRIDGES OUT IN JEFFERSON TOWNSHIP

One North and East of Clyde, and the Other South of the Convent

County Clerk Fred Smith received word this morning that two bridges in Jefferson township had been washed out by the high waters. One of the bridges was a 36-foot span with two approaches north and east of Clyde over the Wild Cat creek. The other bridge was a trestle about 48 feet long south of the convent at Clyde.

No report had been received at the county clerk's office about how many other bridges were washed out and are in need of repairs. It is thought that many of the bridges will need new fills and new approaches. Several bridges have been reported as being off their pilings.

AUTO PARTY HAD TROUBLE IN GETTING HOME

Encountered Much Difficulty in Making Trip to Maryville from Liberty, Neb.

An automobile party composed of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Hahn and son, Junior, Mr .and Mrs. Clement Hahn and children, and Judge J. H. Sayler of Maryville had a difficult time in getting to Maryville yesterday from a visit at Liberty, Neb. This party had gone to Liberty for a Sunday visit with Judge Sayler's sister, Mrs. D. H. Michael. They left Liberty Sunday evening as the trip takes about five hours to Maryville, they expected to arrive home that evening. After crossing the Missouri river at Rulo, the party encountered rain and mud and saw a number of cars stuck in the mud. They were able to make it to Bigelow Sunday night and remained there that night. Monday about noon the party decided to start for Maryville and had trouble in getting across the Nodaway River at Maitland. The high water was running across the river bridge at Maitland, the water being so high it came to the running board of the car. They were unable to cross the Elkhorn near Graham and had to go one mile north to get over this creek. All of the culverts and bridges they went over showed the high waters had been several feet higher than these bridges and there were wheat stocks, and other crops as well as other things on the banisters of the bridges. The party arrived in Maryville about six o'clock last evening.

B. M. CHANDLER AND A. E. SCHUMACHER WALKED HOME

Came to Maryville Yesterday from Conception—Found Two Bridges Washed Out

Ben M. Chandler and Anselm E. Schumacher who visited Sunday at Camp Seckington near Albany and got rainbound at Conception Junction Sunday night on their way back to Maryville, walked most of the way from Conception Junction to Maryville yesterday afternoon. They left the Junction about 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon and arrived here about 6:30 o'clock. They walked from Conception to a point about two miles west and then got a ride to a point about a half a mile from Bedison. Here they found the Long Branch bridge washed out and they took to the railroad again and walked to a point west of Bedison where they took another ride and drove to the Mozingo branch about six miles east of Maryville. They could not pass this bridge and took to the railroad track again and walked to a point two miles east of Maryville when they got a car and drove on home.

They said the bridge over the Mozingo branch two miles northwest of Bedison, and the bridge over the Long Branch, just east of Bedison, were washed out.

They said that the bottom fields were badly washed out and in some places it looked as if there was some hail with the rain storm. There was one place between the river bridge southeast of Maryville and Bedison where it appeared that the water had been over the railroad track. Workmen on the Wabash yesterday were working about two miles east of the river bridge. A railroad bridge just about a half a mile out of Conception, the workmen said, was out of line and they were afraid that it would give them trouble.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton K. Garrett will leave the last of the week for Colorado, where they will spend several weeks visiting points of interest there.

Mrs. Anna Stauble is quite ill at the home of her sister, Mrs. Robert Heflin.

The Standard of Comparison

Both are Buick

One has Four Cylinders—the other has Six

The Buick nameplate on the radiator of a car is the mark of merit. Whether the car has four cylinders or six is of secondary importance. The vital fact is that it's a Buick.

The new Buick Four is the ideal automobile for the motorist requiring a light economical car, yet having all the speed, power and sturdiness of larger and costlier cars.

The Buick Six, perfectly appointed, with all the flexibility and smoothness of the six cylinder car at its best, has earned its position among motor cars as the Standard of Comparison.

Choosing between the Four and the Six is simply a matter of size and price. Both are Buick.

When Better Automobiles Are Built,
Buick Will Build Them.
